Shiny Shoes

"Wow!" My mum brought back shiny shoes from a <sup>big</sup> pile of boxes. I was at a shoe shop with my mum. It was the weekend with the interschool racer <sup>In the middle.</sup> I was so worried, afraid, and nervous, ~~though~~ <sup>but</sup> I felt like I was going to win.

I pulled my new, shiny and shimmering trainers on. They had a red star on the side. My mum helped me tie my laces on tight. We quickly walked down the road to the green grassy area. <sup>where the race was.</sup> We were late! I missed the talk of where we were going to go! I thought that didn't matter at that time, but it did matter.

24/5/12 Shiny Shoes

I strode bravely up to the start/finish line. All the other competitors from different schools were there ~~also~~<sup>as well</sup>. "Ready set, GO!!!" shouted the organiser. I ran following the person in front. Soon I lost sight of them. Was I the fastest? No, I was the slowest!! Luckily people ran along side with me. I was so slow, they said.

I ran and ran and ran. It was a long way to run. SPL-AAA I fell into a pile of mud! The mud felt cold, slimy.

and oh so gwey. My <sup>shoe</sup> fellof.
Oww! It bonked me in the head. It hurt so mach. I got up, out of the cold mud. I walked to the finish line.

I didn't finish
the race. My mum was there to take me to... the library!

We got to the library and I found a book with the same star on my shoe! I eagerly opened the book and began to read. Do not tie the laces or you will ~~trip~~. With laces untied you will run extra fast. I read. Vh-ha!

It was the next year and  $\frac{I}{p3}$

did as the book said. I thought it was silly advice but did it anyway. I came first. So I kept the shoes forever. I got new shoes.
